DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

1. Claims 1, 3, 5(1), 5(3), and 6-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Atarashi et al. (US 5,763,085). Atarashi teaches a powder having multilayered films on the surface, comprising a metal core having at least one metal oxide film thereon (abstract). The metallic oxide layers have a thickness of from 0.01-20microns (abstract), preferably 0.02-5 micros (col 6, line 9). The core is preferably magnetic and selected from the group consisting of iron, cobalt, nickel, etc. (col 5, lines 29-59). The coating(s) is a metal oxide that may be dielectric (col 8, line 40). The particles may be consolidated as a toner (col 9, line 37), a heat-dissipating sheet (col 13, line 19) or for heat dissipation of electronic parts (col 13, lines 13-19).

With respect to the new limitation that the particles form a "three dimensional article, the examiner takes the position that any article/object inherently has three dimensions.

Art Unit: 1773

Atarashi does not teach that the toner should be molded. However, the courts have held that the method of making a product does not patentably distinguish a product from a product taught in the prior art unless it can be shown that the method of making the product inherently results in a materially different product. In the present application, no such showing has been made. In the event any differences can be shown for the product of the product-by-process claims 1, 3, and 5, as opposed to the product taught in Atarashi, such differences would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art as a routine modification of the product in the absence of a showing of unexpected results, see also In re Thorpe, 227 USPQ 964.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed August 5, 2002 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that toner, such as that taught in Atarashi, is discontinuously fixed and the powder is not arranged at the same distance from one another in a given direction. Applicant further argues that, in the case of multiple layer images, it is usually discontinuous and irregular. In support of this position, Applicant provides the Office with a series of Figures. However, there is nothing of record that suggests the figures accurately portray the current invention of the toner taught by Atarashi. The arguments of counsel cannot take the place of evidence in the record. In re Schulze, 346 F.2d 600, 602, 145 USPQ 716, 718 (CCPA 1965); In re Geisler, 116 F.3d 1465, 43 USPQ2d 1362 (Fed. Cir. 1997).

Applicant also argues that layer thickness is specifically disclosed in Examples 1 and 3. Furthermore, Applicant argues that the present invention allows for electromagnetic wave having a specific wavelength to be reflected. In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., layer thickness and reflection of an electromagnetic wave having a specific wavelength) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Thus, Applicant's arguments are not persuasive.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
